Schola Cantorum de Venezuela

FIRST FULL US TOUR! CATCH THE SPIRIT:
OCTOBER 23-NOVEMBER 13, 2011

"Extravagant choral outbursts, feverish street-band percussion and ballad like bar-room solos. Amazing. An unquestionable masterpiece."
THE NEW YORK TIMES

"Transcendent. A triumph. The audience leapt to its collective feet and let loose with cheers, deafening applause and foot-stomping for a full 20 minutes."
LOS ANGELES TIMES

"The Schola Cantorum de Venezuela, from Caracas, has become Lincoln Center's resident exotic choir, mainly because composers seem so strongly drawn to the group's robust, flexible sound."
THE NEW YORK TIMES

"...must be counted among the handful of the world's great vocal ensembles, and they may be unrivaled for the range of sounds they can produce"
NEW YORK OBSERVER

The Schola Cantorum de Venezuela is the premiere touring chorus of Latin America! With a breathtaking range of repertoire from sacred hymns and motets to propulsive rhythmic and tuneful popular idioms of their rich Latin American culture, every SCV concert is a vivid cultural and joyous experience.

Beloved by today's best known composers and conductors, the SCV has toured the world, appearing in many of the most prestigious festivals and greatest performing halls from Vienna's Musikverein to New York's Lincoln Center. After 40 years, this tour is the SCV's FIRST FULL US TOUR.

John Adams and Osvaldo Golijov have each written major works especially for the SCV, including Golijov's famed La Pasión según San Marcos, prominently featuring the SCV's virtuosic array of sounds, rhythms and movement that distinguish its style. Favored by star international conductors – such as Claudio Abbado, Sir Simon Rattle, Gustavo Dudamel, Helmuth Rilling – they bring infectious passion to every work they sing.

Bring them to your public – to an experience of exuberant and unpretentious joy of singing.
